

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
A Note on Abbreviations	ix
Introduction	1
Part I Idealism: 1884–1894
Chapter 1 ORIGINS OF DEWEY’S IDEALISM	13
Background of Dewey’s Idealism	17
Neo-Hegelian Ethical Theory	29
Chapter 2 DEWEY’S EARLY IDEALISM	44
Dewey’s Initial Response	45
Philosophy, Science, and Psychology	50
Dewey’s Psychology	55
Chapter 3 OUTLINES OF A CRITICAL THEORY OF ETHICS , 1891	63
“Moral Theory and Practice”	65
Moral Judgment and Idealist Logical Theory	70
Moral Theory and Practice in Dewey’s Outlines	75
Critical Objections to the Outlines	83
Chapter 4 DEWEY’S REEXAMINATION OF SELF-REALIZATION
ETHICS, 1891–1894	89
Critique of Self-realization	90
The End of Morality in the Study of Ethics	99
Moral Judgment in the Study of Ethics	105
Part II Pragmatism: 1894–1908
Chapter 5 YEARS OF TRANSITION, 1894–1903	119
Dewey on the Reflex Arc	124
Pragmatic Developments in Dewey’s Thought	129

	Dewey's Reformulation of the Relation of Natural and Ethical Science	135
Chapter 6	PRAGMATIC ETHICAL SCIENCE, THE 1908 ETHICS	147
	The Functions of Scientific Theories	149
	First Principles of Moral Science: Moral Agency and Its Object	153
	The Good and the Right	157
	Moral Judgment	168
	Scientific Practical Judgment	175
Chapter 7	TOWARD A PRAGMATIC COMMUNITARIANISM	182
	Facts and Values: "The Logic of Judgments of Practice"	186
	Philosophy, Democracy, and Education	191
	Optimism, Meliorism, and Human Nature	199
	Bibliography	219
	Index	225